

MY OWN STORY

Is Youngest Congress Member at 29

BY ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE

"MY OWN STORY" is an exclusive newspaper version of one of the great autobiographies of modern times; La Follette's own story of adventures in politics as written by himself in 1912, together with an authorized narrative of his experiences in the years since then.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS INSTALLMENTS

La Follette enters political life immediately comes into conflict with Wisconsin political bossism; nevertheless is elected district attorney of Dane county, makes good in his position, though brought into further clashes with the "influences," and finally determines to run for Congress. At this point a member of the "Madison-circuit" warns him: "Young man, you can't go to Congress. I think I can; anyhow, I'm going to try," is La Follette's answer.

They made it a hard fight. They hired most of the teams in Madison and covered the country districts. There was no influence they did not use; no wires they did not pull. But I carried the caucuses against them and elected my delegates.

The very night that I got the final returns from Dane county I received a telegram from Sam Hays saying that he had carried the last caucuses and that settled Grant. That meant that I had won. Sam had not been out of his buggy for thirty days.

We never went into the other counties in the district at all, although the university man did what they could for me there. I cannot refrain here from speaking of another who helped. Among the notable men of southern Wisconsin was General George E. Bryant. General Bryant had been a ticket supporter, and was a powerful influence in my behalf among the old soldiers. When I was elected governor he became chairman of the State Central Committee, and he fought with me through all my campaigns. The convention was held at Dodgeville and, although the old crowd was there in force, I was nominated on the first ballot. They tried to beat me at the polls by throwing support to the Democrats—and they

Leopold and Loeb; A Close Up Picture. Follow The Eyes; They Tell A Story. Pale, Sallow, Frightened Human Beings. To Hang Or Be Jailed—The Center of Battle.

By Arthur Brisbane

THIS is a close view of the murder trial of the century. You are sitting, with this writing, in the past eleven Tuesday mornings, in Judge Caverly's court on the floor of the Criminal Court building on the "near north side" of the Chicago River.

In a light room with white metal ceiling, big windows on two sides, large noiseless fans revolve, and a crowd of men, some in suits and some in work clothes, are as eagerly as you are waiting to watch on Tynburn Hill, waiting for the hangman to mount the scaffold, as eagerly as they watch, in the early dawn around the Place de la Roquette when a man is to be guillotined.

Looking for Loeb and Leopold, you follow the eyes of a young 17-year-old girl sitting with her back to the two moving picture machines. There they sit close together, their lawyer beside them ten feet from the moving picture bench.

Consider that you are sitting in a chair between the young murderers and the judge's rostrum. You could touch them with your hand. What is written here, you see and think as you look about.

Boys that have caught rabbits in traps, looking in at the painted windows, know what those young men look like. They sit trapped, facing the gallows. Their lawyer encourages them. A thin, dark, little man with a stern, cold face. Behind each sits a bailiff, with handcuffs ready. A third bailiff, heavily armed, is there for good measure.

They are frightened, worried, hunted. Loeb is pallid, sallow, cheeks slightly sunken. His big, round dark eyes look straight ahead, as from side to side, but without looking at anybody.

Leopold is less conspicuous, seems to fade away into the greater strength and power bulk of Clarence Darrow, beside him. Leopold's eyes are light gray, his nose long, dark, and thin, his ears high on his head. Both have in each the face below the forehead and head top look like a roof placed on top of the face—like the roof on a bird's house.

Loeb wears a small bow tie, Leopold a longer, type of cravat, the "four-in-hand" style. Loeb wears a short coat with large pockets sewed to the outside, belt running around the waist. Leopold wears a dark, low-cut, wide-pointed blue serge. Both dress with care. Their hair is thick, very black, thoroughly greased. Puffed back, it droops over the back of the head like the quills of a porcupine at rest.

Many young girls in the courtroom are looking at them. Some come forth to see. Most of them are dressed as for a racing day or a bull fight, with finest clothes on.

The two young murderers sit through the courtroom hours with hands folded in their laps (it seems strange to speak of two ordinary young men within reach of your hand as "two young murderers.") When Leopold talks to his lawyer, he unfolds his hands to use them in gesticulation, pushing up the lower part of the palms, pulling in his chin, to emphasize what he says.

To the judge's right sit reporters for news agencies and telegraph operators with "silencers" on their machines, wearing "head sets" that they may hear "noiseless" incoming messages. The reporters are eager, keen and alert as a terrier in a rat pit, waiting for the rats.

Wherever they look the two boys, both in their teens, so eager, studying, piercing eyes. Two typical female reporters sit within a few feet of them. One of them cares nothing about her looks, wants the world to know it, and in consequence she looks well. Her hair is roughly bobbed as though she had done it herself, her dress, that would suit Julien's atelier in Paris, proclaim her intellectual character.

The other DOES care how she looks, and wears her black, nice city hair drawn sideways across the top of her head. A section of the tail of a black Sheelard pony. She is dressed carefully all over. They look at Loeb and at Leopold. Then they write with their little pen pencils. Then they look again. Seventy-five or a hundred others, male and female, are doing the same.

As the boys listen to some passage of their confessions, read serfishly as part of the "case for the people," they lean toward each other and laugh. That frequent laugh is said by the reporters to indicate insanity, abnormality, everything queer, base and dreadful.

It is really as natural as the sound made by a cockatoo. That bird has only one sound to express all his emotions. Those two boys express emotion only through laughter. They are frightened, and sit close together in terror, their faces drawn, thinking perhaps, how they might have planned it better. When relief comes for a moment they laugh.

Such is their gamut of expression—terrified silence or laughter. An active young man asks, "Can I do any identifying for you? Over there are the relatives." You turn to face a picture of horror and pity. There sits the father of the young murderer Leopold and another son beside him. Here are the sons of the children visited upon the fathers. In all the earth you would not find agony more intense than in the face of that unfortunate man.

His face and forehead are drawn, eyebrows reaching from eyes to hair. His face literally tied in a knot of mental agony, he sits hour after hour listening, watching. A great painter of old days attended the torture chamber to study muscles working in the faces of men stretched upon the rack. Here such an artist would find his subject in the unfortunate father of the young murderer.

Italians Claim Kittleson's Criticism of Celebration Demonstrates His Prejudice

KIRKWALL, ORKNEY ISLAND

Offer to Buy Old Railroad Bonds of City

$5,000 Value Set By R. R. for Long Lost Securities

CHICAGO, Ill.—Officials and auditors of the Northwestern road will offer the city of Madison, Wis., approximately $5,000 for outstanding bonds of the Madison and Watertown branch of the railroad which that municipality has had in its treasury since the road was built.

This offer will be made to the city auditor and a member of the city council in charge with the settlement. This issue of $25,000 worth of bonds is the only outstanding block of the securities which have not been redeemed.

The city of Madison came into possession of the securities when the railroad was built into that city from Watertown. In order to encourage the construction of the road the municipality purchased $25,000 worth of bonds at a par value of $100. The value of the securities dropped rapidly after this branch of the road had been operating for several years and most of the bonds were bought back at much lower prices. Par value of the securities has never been reached as this branch of the road has lost nearly $12,000,000 since it has been operated.

Acceptance of the proposal is now awaiting the action of the officials of the Wisconsin city.

He'd Never Been on a Horse---

"The Nervous Wreck"

BY E. J. RATH

Starts Tomorrow in The Capital Times

Madison Italians, hostile at the criticism of their St. Ann's day celebration Saturday and Sunday nights made by Mayor I. Milo Kittleson, in which that official states that the noise of exploding fireworks disturbed the city's peace, have written to The Capital Times through their spokesman, Domenico Mandorino, taking offense at the statement.

The letter follows: Yesterday's issue of The Capital Times contained the startling news that "no future permits will be granted individuals in the future to discharge noisemaking explosives"; and this sensational announcement was ascribed to Mayor Milo Kittleson. Apparently the writer, if not His Honor, the Mayor himself, is not able to distinguish between fireworks and intentional noise making.

"When a group of students united to celebrate Venetian night, the discharge of the noise making explosives is called fireworks. It is a wonderful display of fireworks when done by Americans at the yearly celebration of Independence day. There are no objections, no complaints; no one is awakened by the explosions; no sick are disturbed; but when a group of Italian-American citizens unite to celebrate the feast of their patron saint, the fireworks which give pleasure and enjoyment to thousands on the Venetian night and on July 4 are branded as noise making. It awakens people from their peaceful slumber and disturbs the sick."

"Since the Italian celebration has caused so much commotion, unrest and disturbance, it is time that Mayor Kittleson, stopped issuing any more permits to God, who of late has favored us with almost daily thunderstorms; otherwise the health of the peaceful Madisonians will be seriously impaired."

"Of course, the protest and objections were not raised because the people of Madison did not enjoy Saturday's and Sunday's display of fireworks, but because it was done by Italians."

"It is proper and fitting for other groups to enjoy themselves when they wish and how they wish, but when an Italian-American group goes to the expense of having one celebration every year in order to enjoy the things which they cherish most, their rejoicing becomes a 'disturbance.'"

"The united Italian-American citizens of Madison respectfully, but strongly protest against the sale announcement because such an order would be unjust, unfair and un-American."

"As a matter of fact, thousands of appreciative Americans were present at the celebration at which the Gov. John J. Blaine himself spoke. We thank the governor and all our American friends for their presence and feel sure that the complaints did not come from them, but from some narrow-minded, prejudiced crank."

Opposition Missing In Other Years

Cases Like Ekern and Huber Prevailed In '08, '12 and '18

Ekern Goes to Chicago

Question of Co. Tickets Is Problem for La Follette in the West

Herman L. Ekern, candidate for reelection as attorney general, and Henry A. Huber, candidate for lieutenant governor on the republican ticket will have no opposition at the September primaries. This is not the first time that candidates for state offices have been without opposition since the passage of the primary election law. In 1908, Gov. James O. Davidson, Attorney General Frank L. Gibort and Secretary of State James A. Frear had no opposition in the primaries. In 1912 Gov. F. E. McGovern, Lieut. Gov. Thomas and Secretary of State John S. Donald had no opposition. In 1918, Secretary of State Meritt Hull had no opposition.

Mr. Ekern was particularly elated over the fact he will have no opposition as it will give him an opportunity to devote his time to the La Follette presidential campaign. Mr. Ekern left last night for Chicago where he will be director of finance at the Chicago headquarters. He will have his offices at the Morrison hotel with John M. Nelson, manager of the campaign.

Ekern-Huber Unopposed. Atty. Gen. Herman L. Ekern, candidate for re-election, and Henry A. Huber, candidate for lieutenant governor, will have no opposition on the republican ticket in the September primaries, final lists of nominations announced by Secretary of State Fred P. Zimmerman reveal. A total of 111 candidates filed for various state, congressional, and legislative positions.

In the race for governor will be John J. Blaine, George F. Comings, Arthur E. Hirst, Republicans, William F. Quirk, Milwaukeean, Socialist, Adolph R. Buckman, Prohibition, and Martin L. Luck, Beaver Dam, Democrat.

Four Republicans filed for the office of secretary of state, including Secretary Zimmerman, seeking re-election, Guy J. Johnson, Chippewa Falls, Theodore Dammann, Milwaukee and F. E. Davidson, Milwaukee.

All of the present Republican congressmen will have opposition on their own tickets except James A. Frear of the tenth district. Three Republican candidates filed in the fourth and eleventh districts.

Questions on County Tickets (By The Associated Press) CHICAGO—Chicago Wheeler candidates have failed thus far to settle the question as to whether independence.

Sweet Joins Revolt Upon 'Defense Day'

Colorado Governor Says He Won't Call Out National Guard

ASK BLAINE TO ACT. The peace committee of the Madison Federation of Labor has issued a statement calling upon Gov. Blaine to refuse to issue a proclamation in favor of Mobilization Day. The committee comprises Fred Mason, R. E. Morrish and W. L. Forrest. The statement follows:

"We do hereby voice our protest against the issuance of a proclamation in favor of 'Mobilization Day' Sept. 12. We further urge to do every thing within our power to destroy this vicious method of militarism."

(By The Associated Press) LOVELAND, Col.—Declaring he would cooperate with President Coolidge as far as he deems it proper, but declaring unequivocally that he would not order the mobilization of the Colorado National Guard national Defense Day, Sept. 12, Gov. Sweet in an interview today went on record in opposition to the idea of the observance of the day.

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON—The criticism of Gov. Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, of plans for the observance of "National Defense Day" Sept. 12, is attributed in a statement by the war department to "rather extraordinary inferences from what seems to be a perfectly clear document." His order for assembly of national guards organizations and appointment of local committees to help the arrangements for observance of the day, the statement adds, "will enable the department to carry out its plan in Nebraska completely."

This document, the department emphasizes, makes no reference to "mobilization of the civilians" providing only that civilians who volunteer their services for the day will be permitted to parade with national guard and organized reserve organizations in order that the process of mobilization may be stimulated.

The instructions say that the general plan for the day has two main objectives, "namely, patriotic demonstrations and a test mobilization." It is explained that "in lieu of extensive field exercises which for economic reasons cannot be presented during the present calendar year the secretary of war has decided to initiate a mobilization demonstration which will serve as an occasion for assemblages and ceremonies involving public manifestations of loyalty, and practical patriotism."

Legal Fight Is Launched By Crowe

Opens Move to Prevent Defense From Putting On Experts

Demands Call for Jury. State Holds If Insanity Issue Is Raised, Plea Should Be Changed

(By The Associated Press) CHICAGO—The state closed and the defense started testimony in the hearing which is to determine the punishment of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, for the kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks.

Frank A. Sheer was the last witness for the state. He testified merely that he took Loeb's confession on the night of May 30. The defense called as its first witness Dr. William Alanson White, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's hospital, Washington, D. C. Judge Caverly over-ruled an objection by State's Atty. Robert E. Crowe to testimony by any defense witnesses.

Asks Jury Impaneled. "If your Honor gave these defendants a term of years satisfactory to them and their attorneys," argued Mr. Crowe, "I could not appeal and they would not. I insist if this question of insanity be raised, it is your Honor's duty to impanel a jury and determine that fact."

Judge Caverly shook his head and "over-ruled" but Mr. Crowe continued on the argument on the legal point he had raised. Dr. White then was called to the stand as first witness for the defense. He was questioned by Walter Bachrach, of the defense counsel and stated his name, residence, age and profession.

"State your professional experience," said Mr. Bachrach. "I object," said Mr. Crowe. "Why?" asked Judge Caverly, and the big legal fight of the proceedings was on.

The defense told the judge that they had a right to show that mentally handicapped in the circumstances of the crime, and the court indicated that he agreed with them.

The judge said, however, that no opportunity remained for an offer of insanity as a legal defense, and that he would not permit such testimony to be introduced.

When the dispute reached a squabbling stage Mr. Crowe said to the court: "If you hear evidence as to insanity and then sentence these men to life imprisonment and they then appeal to the supreme court I will confess error."

"I don't care what you gentlemen do with this case when I get through with it," retorted the judge. Mr. Crowe read from the statutes the enactment governing conduct of murder trials in which insanity is offered as a defense. He pointed out that the law provided that as soon as the question was raised a "stipendiary" jury and let that body determine the fact.

"Can language be more explicit?" asked Mr. Crowe. "Have we reached the point where a man can plead guilty to avoid a trial by jury? Does the defense here desire a trial before one man when they have resisted a trial before twelve?"

"Judge Answers Argument." "Listen to me a moment," said Judge Caverly. "If a defendant came into this court without counsel and pleaded guilty to a crime, the court would have a right to appoint alienists to inform him whether that defendant was competent to plead guilty. I did in fact adopt that very course in a very recent case and it resulted in a 'stipendiary' jury and let that body determine the fact."

"It is true that the counsel who might be appointed by the court to defend a man would have no right to waive that man's constitutional right and this holds true right now. I have a right to know to know whether these boys were competent to plead guilty through their counsel of their own volition."

Bank Officers Vote to Raise Capital Stock

$200,000 Fund Increase Ordered By Bank of Wisconsin

Directors of the Bank of Wisconsin voted to increase the capital stock of the institution from $300,000 to $500,000 at their meeting Tuesday. They also voted to purchase the building now occupied by the bank from the Bankers Realty Co. The bank has had a controlling interest in the building for some time.

The Bank of Wisconsin was founded in 1892 with a capital stock of $100,000 which was increased to $300,000 in 1910, of which $100,000 was stock dividend. The deposits of the institution have increased from $1,000,000 to more than $4,000,000. The growth has been the largest during the last five years which, according to financial authorities, has been the greatest reconstruction period since the Civil War.

The increase in the capital stock was necessary to take care of the increased volume of business, according to R. L. Hopkins, president. In discussing the matter he said, "The increased demands of customers have made it necessary to increase our capital stock at this time. The directors felt that as the representative banks of the city it is pertinent that its capital should be increased with the growth of the city itself."

Peggy's Mate No. 4 Asks Divorce

(By the Associated Press)
NEW YORK—A suit against her for annulment of her marriage, a counter suit for her separation and a testimony as a witness for the trial of a prominent lawyer for alleged bribery of a juror figured in the affairs yesterday of Countess Gostia Morner, formerly Peggy Hopkins Joyce, show girl, and former wife of two millionaires.

The countess first attracted a crowded court room when she appeared as a witness for the government in the trial of William J. Fallon for the robbery of Charles W. Rendigs in a mail fraud case in 1922.

She told of a party with Fallon at an inn where he left the table for a few minutes before dinner was served. The government is attempting to establish that it was in this interval that Fallon paid Rendigs $10,000.

Peggy's fourth husband, Count Gostia Morner, which brought her her first title, has sued for an annulment of his marriage, which took place at a brief two months' tour at Atlantic City, and Peggy in turn, has sued both for a separation and the return of $10,000 she claims she contributed to the count's support.

Railways Merge

Consolidation of Northwestern and Omaha Roads Is Effected, Report

The consolidation of the Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Omaha railroad with the Chicago and Northwestern has practically been completed, it was learned from local railroad officials on Wednesday.

Steps are now being taken to bring the claims department of the former road under the same roof with that of the Northwestern. This step will mean the releasing of nearly 5,000 employees of the Omaha road, it is said.

The operations of the two roads have dovetailed for years, each operating its trains over the other's lines. President W. H. Finley of the Northwestern road has been the executive head of the Omaha road for some time.

Opposition In Other Years Also Absent

pendent state and county tickets should be attached to the campaign lists of the Wisconsin and Montana senators.

William F. Gailing, chairman of the executive committee of the Cook Co. Central committee for the Conference for Progressive Political Action told today of divergent views within the local group on the advisability of entering gubernatorial and senatorial candidates.

under the La Follette banner in Illinois. This question, thought to have been settled in the eastern meetings of the La Follette supporters has hopped up so persistently in the various western states as preliminary campaign plans were shaped, that a ruling on a specific case probably will be required to dispose of the matter.

Mr. Gailing said today that last night's meeting of the county executive committee was occupied almost entirely with the discussion of the "State Ticket" question.

Rep. E. E. Browne of Wisconsin, director of the congressional bureau in the La Follette National headquarters here, stated flatly today that there is a "probability" that in certain states, independent candidates for the house and senate may be entered under the La Follette-Wheeler mastheads.

"In Kansas," for example," said Rep. Browne, "there is the senatorial race in which Sen. Capper seeks re-election. We have considered the problems of the state and have decided that there will be no independent candidate there against Sen. Capper. This does not mean that we have already endorsed him, but it does preclude a three way senatorial race. Our recommendations on the various senatorial candidacies will be published after the state primaries."

Union Vodvil Is Set
For December 7 and 8

Plans for the annual Union Vodvil which is staged by Union Board are rapidly formulating under the direction of Hawley Porter '25, general chairman, and the dates for the production have been set for Friday and Saturday, December 7 and 8.

Union Vodvil will be given at the Parkway as usual and a matinee will be presented Saturday.

Either William Purnell '22 or Heine Hall '25, both stars of Harefoot productions, will coach the acts, according to Porter. Sidney Thomson, also of Harefoot, who is rumored, may go into the scenery business in even more earnest than he has played, will be in charge of the scenery.

Porter will announce the committees at the outset of the academic year in September. Tryouts will be held beginning Wednesday, October 15. A committee of three to choose the acts will be composed of two faculty members and, if possible, one professional coach.

"It is important that those who are here in summer school who will be here next year and think that they have any talents along the vaudeville lines start thinking about an act," Porter declared this afternoon. "Only six acts will be given and if students can get some ideas this early in the game, a first class Vodvil will be assured."

Normal Body Hits Heads In Politics

Opposes Office-Seeking By Educators; Policy Is Wrong, Claim

A resolution declaring against presidents and faculty members of state normal schools running for state legislative positions was adopted late yesterday by the state normal regents and made public on Wednesday. The resolution stated that the candidacy of normal employees for state offices "violates sound public policy."

It was announced also that the board at a future time will take action prohibiting normal faculty members from running for political offices.

A member of the Milwaukee normal school recently announced his candidacy for the assembly but later withdrew. A member of the River Falls faculty yesterday filed nomination papers for the state senate.

The normal board declared it would not request faculty members now candidates to withdraw.

The board opposes the idea of having normal school teachers in a position to fix their own salaries and to constitute a lobby on the floor of the assembly or senate to work for normal school appropriation bills.

The resignation of President F. A. Cotton of the La Crosse normal school was accepted by the board and is effective Sept. 1. The board appointed a committee to consider applications and candidates for a successor to President Cotton.

Members on this committee are Regents A. W. Zerkow, La Crosse, Supt. John Callahan, Edward Dempsey, Oshkosh, Clough Gates, Superior, and Miss Clara T. Runge, Baraboo.

Prof. A. H. Sanford and C. A. Whitney of the La Crosse Normal school were named as an executive committee to manage affairs of the La Crosse school pending selection of a successor to President F. A. Cotton.

Bring Death Car Driver to Madison Jail

Russell Hyatt, 24, Madison automobile salesman and driver of the car in which Harold Bowler, University of Wisconsin student was killed when it left the road near Sheboygan two weeks ago, was brought to Madison and incarcerated in the Dane county jail Wednesday on a charge of violating his parole on the state board of control.

Hyatt was paroled in 1923 after he had been found guilty of stealing an automobile from Madison. The charge is made by B. M. Jostad, chief probation officer of the state board of control.

The salesman was arrested in Sheboygan Thursday and held by Sheriff Goodell of that county until 3 a. m. Wednesday when he was brought to Madison on a writ of habeas corpus secured by Lawrence Hall, attorney.

On motion of Mr. Hall the arrested man was transferred to the Dane county jail by order of Judge O. A. Stolen after a hearing in superior court.

Hall claims that Hyatt was illegally arrested and held without warrant.

Hyatt again came under scrutiny of the control board after Bowler, Sheboygan, one of the three other men riding with Hyatt, died from injuries received when Hyatt's car turned turtle north of Sheboygan. Bowler was a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity here.

For the last year Hyatt has been engaged in contracting work in Sheboygan with his brother, Frank.

If found guilty of the parole violation, he faces a state penitentiary sentence.

Can't Get Nuns So Parochial School Closes

Sisters Demanded In Large Cities, Claim: 4 Hurt In Crash

BARABOO, Wis.—St. Joseph's parochial school here will not be re-opened this fall, according to present plans. The inability to secure teachers for the school, owing to the increasing demand for them in the larger cities, is given as the reason by the Rev. Fr. B. C. O'Reilly, pastor of St. Joseph's church. The school has been conducted without interruption for many years here.

Four persons were injured in an automobile crash which occurred about nine miles north of Watertown between a Stearns-Knight car owned by John A. He sustained a broken leg and two broken ribs. His wife suffered one broken rib. One daughter had her collar bone broken, and a second daughter had several ribs broken and a fractured wrist. The driver of the car, Alvin Weber, a son, had one leg injured.

What Is La Follette Doing at Washington? Here Is Picture of His Routine For a Day

Senator Will Make Set Speeches; Will Not Make General Stumping Tour

Washington Bureau The Capital Times. WASHINGTON, D. C.—Contrary to many reports going out of Washington recently, Senator La Follette is not planning a general stumping tour of the country. He will center on a few set speech engagements.

The Senator's political enemies, confronted with this fact, declare La Follette at 69 is in such poor physical condition that he cannot stand the strain of grueling platform campaigning. They are preparing to use it as an argument against his candidacy that for the same reason he cannot undertake a general speaking tour he cannot bear the burdens and perform the duties of the Presidency.

Senator La Follette's friends take quite a different view of the matter. Some of them who have been in the closest contact with him for years declare the Progressive leader is, in fact, in better physical condition today than at any time during the last five or six years.

The Senator's office in the Capitol, just off the Senate gallery, receives these days a steady stream of callers from all parts of the country. Robert M. La Follette, Jr., and Basil M. Manly, director of the People's Legislative Service, probably see more of him than any other individuals. They participate in most of the conferences to which the Senator is a party. Herman L. Ekern who heads the Finance Committee of the national organization, and Rep. John M. Nelson, national campaign manager, have the run of the office when they are in Washington. They have just now left the capital for Chicago after spending three or four days going over the details of the campaign.

All of these men, who have been in daily contact with La Follette, declare the Senator's physical condition will not keep him off the stump. Rep. Nelson summed up the attitude of La Follette's confidantes before he returned to Chicago headquarters. "It is ridiculous to assume that Senator La Follette will dodge strenuous speaking tour because of his age or his physical condition," Nelson said. "I have known Bob for a good many years and I have never known him to spare himself when he felt his services were needed."

"He is in better shape today than he was in 1922 when he was a candidate for re-election to the Senate. He had recently undergone a major operation and had not been on the stump for several years. But in that campaign he toured every county of Wisconsin, made 60 or 65 speeches and finished the campaign in the pink of condition. "I am personally opposed to the Senator's making an extensive speaking campaign this year simply because I believe he will be more effective and get a larger vote by different tactics. La Follette himself will stay off the stump, so far as a general tour is concerned, only if he is convinced of the truth of my statement."

"In 1912, Roosevelt and Taft spoke all over the country while Wilson stayed at Shadow Lawn, making half a dozen set speeches late in the campaign. Wilson won. In 1916 Wilson again stayed at home while Hughes made numerous speeches, among them a speech in California which cost him the loss of the state. In 1920, Harding made a front porch campaign at Marion while Cox made the most remarkable speaking campaign on record. Everybody knows what happened in November. "I hope to see Senator La Follette make just such a winning campaign as Wilson and Harding made. Along in September and October he will probably make a number of carefully prepared set speeches. He is the greatest platform speaker living in America and his appearance will dispose of those critics who will spend the next few months declaring he is broken down in health."

Senator La Follette's physical appearance today bears out the claims of his friends that he is vigorous and active. He usually reports to his office at 9 o'clock and remains almost continuously in conference until 6 o'clock. At noon he is driving to the restaurant of the Union station where he eats sparingly. He adheres strictly to a vegetarian diet, and usually orders a bowl of milk with graham bread and a vegetable salad. The Senator for years has had the knack of snatching an hour's sleep, curled up in a Pullman chair or stretched out in an easy chair. Almost any afternoon these days, around 2 or 3 o'clock, the Progressive candidate for President will be found fast asleep on a lounge in his private office in the Capitol.

Senator La Follette has never made it a practice to hold regular conferences with newspaper correspondents and since he became a candidate for President he has not varied from his old rule. The newspapermen assigned to "cover" him are received by "Bob, Jr." or by officials of the Executive Committee which is preparing now to open a publicity headquarters with a man in charge selected from the Washington corps of correspondents. The Senator is frequently hailed by newspaper men as he enters or departs from his office and he invariably stops to chat with them. But all the arts of the interviewing craft cannot induce him to give out remarks "hot off the bat" on interesting angles of the campaign. For years he has followed the policy of preparing in writing every statement given to the press. Evidently this practice was confirmed during and just after the war when he felt the press was hostile to him and believed his St. Paul speech, which was made the basis for outbursts against him in the Senate, has been misrepresented through the newspapers. Three years ago, La Follette's office in the Capitol was shunned by visitors in Washington. La Follette came and went without much notice. Today the same office is humming with activity. Beyond the small reception room, La Follette is laying his plans for the Progressive campaign, marshalling his forces, outlining his position on the issues he regards as foremost. La Follette's office is the real headquarters in the Progressive campaign.

Raised Farm Prices Will Not Hurt Bob

Believes Farmers Cannot Be Fooled By Wall St. Strategy

THE CAPITAL TIMES WASHINGTON BUREAU WASHINGTON D. C.—Rep. John M. Nelson, national campaign manager for the Progressives, here to preside over the first meeting of the national executive committee which will direct the La Follette-Wheeler campaign, predicted that changes in grain prices will not affect the Progressive vote in November.

The Wisconsin manager smiled when shown statements circulated by Republican and Democratic managers to the effect that the recent rise in wheat, corn and other grain prices had cut the ground out from under the La Follette movement.

"No one will welcome more heartily a rise in the prices received by the farmer for his products than the Progressives," Rep. Nelson said.

"Farm prices will have to advance considerably above the present level before the farmer will come anywhere near recovering the prosperity he enjoyed before the enactment of the Esch-Cummings law by a Republican congress and its signature by a Democratic president and before the 'deflation' policy was enforced by the Federal Reserve board at the best of reactionary Republicans and Democrats in congress.

"It is of course, unfortunate that prices usually advance after the farmer has disposed of his crops. It is to be hoped that prices will continue to rise and that they will be at high levels when the farmer has his crops ready for market."

"To say that the vote for La Follette and Wheeler will be dependent upon farm prices next fall is merely a campaign joke. It is based upon the assumption that the farmer is not an intelligent voter. The farmer knows that when he has a good crop the credit belongs to nature and to his own industry rather than to the president who happens to sit in the White House. He knows that the prices on the products he has to sell are subject to manipulation and he knows that Sen. La Follette and Sen. Wheeler are the only candidates in the field who have a constructive program to offer for free, intelligent, and honest combinations which now exploit farmers all over the country."

The congressman did not appear to be much impressed with reports to the effect that farmers all through the West are enjoying great prosperity or are at the threshold of unprecedented good times.

"The president and Republican leaders generally have been making the same claim for months past," Rep. Nelson said. "While banks have been failing, and farmers have been losing their farms by the thousands, the administration has sung the same song. Yet the department of agriculture has recently issued an official report that the corn crop is backward in all sections of the corn belt and that the grain will be matured only in the event of unusually late frosts in the fall. President Coolidge is in a desperate plight if he is depending upon general farm prosperity for his election."

"The truth is that Sen. La Follette never owed the support he has received from the voters to discontent and to economic distress. Wisconsin is one of the few states which has weathered the period of agricultural depression with a minimum of bank failures and the sale of farms under foreclosure. Wisconsin was one of the most prosperous states in the union when La Follette in 1922 received an unprecedented majority as a candidate for re-election to the senate."

"The La Follette-Wheeler ticket will appeal to every voter on farms or in the cities who believes in honest, progressive government, entirely regardless of whether crops are good or bad or the prices high or low."

Atty. Herman L. Ekern of Wisconsin, who has just returned to Washington after a flying trip through the Middle West, echoed Rep. Nelson's opinion. He declared he has found no recession in the La Follette sentiment in the rural sections. He is chairman of the finance committee which will raise the funds for the Progressive campaign and stated that pledges of support are coming in great volume from the farm district.

Nelson and Ekern will return to Chicago in a few days to plunge into the organization work which has been held up to await arrival by the newly formed executive committee.

P. T. A. Lecture Series Opens At University

Mrs. Edith Hoyt Plans to Analyze Problems in Talks

Mrs. Edith Hoyt, of the university extension department, will lecture every day this week upon the "Parent-Teachers Association." The lectures will be given in room 212 of Bascom Hall at 3:30 each afternoon.

"The work has become a thing to be reckoned with by the schools. Parents have become very much interested because their children are immediately concerned with the success of the association. The movement is spreading widely, even reaching Hawaii, China, and Japan. The universities are also behind the movement, and many of them are offering courses in this field," said Mrs. Hoyt.

She also stated that work was experimental at the University of Wisconsin but that so much pressure had been brought to bear by the national organization that the university had affiliated with the movement.

"A good deal has been accomplished," Mrs. Hoyt continued. "The parents have come to know the problems of the teachers and as a result the schools have been co-operating. Schools and parents must work together—that is essential."

"The towns are becoming interested in the movement and prominent citizens of the community will accept the presidency of the association," Mrs. Hoyt concluded by saying that the true significance of the Parent-Teacher Association should be interpreted to the parents and that in her lectures, she would be concrete in dealing with the association of Wisconsin as she had the statistics of the movement.

The series includes: 1. History of the P. T. A. in the U. S. and Wisconsin. 2. Home Education and its Relation to the School. 3. P. T. A. Related to Health of School Children. 4. What Wisconsin P. T. A.'s Have Accomplished the Past Year. 5. The Teacher and the P. T. A.

Lampert Calls Meeting to Probe "Air Scandal" OSKOSH, Wis.—In calling a meeting for Monday, Aug. 4, of the committee of inquiry into the operations of the U. S. Air Service at Washington, Rep. Florian Lampert, Oshkosh, chairman of the committee, expects much preliminary work will be accomplished in sessions that will continue for about a week. It is probable that adjournment will then be taken until a later date.

While there are no indications that there will be any sensational features such as developed in the oil scandal, Mr. Lampert stated today that a careful inquiry would be made of the air service department whether there is anything radically wrong. If it is found that money is being wasted the committee proposes to make such recommendations as will result in its betterment, he said.

Guardsman Has Foot Cut Off After Camp Accident

A Wisconsin national guardsman suffered the loss of a foot and another was slightly injured in two accidents at Camp Douglas last week.

Private Harry Rasmussen, 21, Company I, 127th infantry, Neenah, was shot through both feet while he was lying on his cot Friday. The shot was fired by Private John Nelson who had cleaned his rifle in an adjoining tent and, thinking the gun was empty, pulled the trigger, discharging a cartridge. The injured man was taken to St. Francis hospital in La Crosse, where his right foot, which had been shattered, was amputated.

Private Clifford McCullough, Company D, 127th infantry, was slightly injured when a machine gun bullet pierced his foot. The accident occurred Thursday.

Jesus Taught C. S. Healing Says Lecturer

Christianity Must Be Freed From Concept of Jesus' Powers

William Duncan Kilpatrick, C. S. B. of Detroit, Mich., member of the board of lecturers of the Mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, lectured Tuesday evening in Music hall under the auspices of the First and Second churches and the University society of this city. Following is a brief synopsis of his lecture:

"Christian Science is primarily exclusively the religion of Jesus the Christ. It is a return to the teachings of primitive Christianity and as such it must necessarily include the practice of healing which exemplified the life, not only of Jesus, but the lives, as well, of many of the early Christians, even the lives of those who had never been taught of Jesus. We have been prone to think that the healing of the sick, the maimed, the halt and the blind by Jesus and by his disciples and apostles was the outcome or result of a special dispensation from God to Jesus which was, in turn, passed along by him to his followers in some mysterious or occult manner. That is, we have been taught to believe that the healing works accomplished by Jesus were the manifestations of a superhuman power with which Jesus was especially endowed to distinguish him from the rest of mankind; that this power was something mysterious and that it is in some wise the heritage of all who obey God.

This is a very erroneous concept of Jesus and of the import of his holy mission and it is a concept which has robbed Christianity of the very essence of that for which Jesus lived and died. In this mistaken concept, that the power to heal the sick and to raise the dead by spiritual means alone, ended on the cross, do we find the pighting limitation from which Christianity must be freed. This wrong concept, that spiritual healing was a special dispensation from God bestowed upon Jesus alone and for a limited period of time, has for centuries deprived mankind of those wonderful blessings which Christian Science has come to restore."

Will Go To Meet

Dr. Smith, Madison, Is Wisconsin Delegate To Chiropractic National Meet

Dr. Warren J. Smith, chiropractor at 21 S. Pinckney st., leaves Friday night for St. Paul to attend the thirteenth annual convention of the National Association of Chiropractors, as delegate from Wisconsin.

Amendments to be presented this year include permission to include admission of groups of chiropractors outside the boundaries of the United States.

Inauguration of foot examinations in public and parochial schools is one of the most important activities undertaken by the association this year. This work is recommended to be carried out under the supervision of the local boards of health and education. Statistics reveal that 60 to 80 percent of children have defective feet. It is hoped that this campaign which is also educational will be the means of preventing much foot suffering before adult life is reached.

Dr. Smith is president of the Wisconsin Chiropractic society. The annual state convention will be held in Madison Oct. 5 and 6. There are 85 chiropractors in this state.

Billy La Hail Returns; Blues Play Neenah--Menasha Today

By De Beck

Billy La Hail Returns; Blues Play Neenah--Menasha Today

"Hit 'em where they ain't." So replied the late Ed Delahanty, in a now famous interview on his batting feats.

That was the only explanation he offered for his remarkable success as a batsman.

Those five words have become a baseball classic.

When a batter is in a slump and looks to his teammates for suggestions, all he usually gets is: "Hit 'em where they ain't."

If a player hits a line drive directly at some player, who makes the catch without moving out of his tracks, some one invariably shouts: "Hit 'em where they ain't."

It is a mighty logical deduction, this stunt of hitting the ball where no one is playing, if you would be a great batter, but rather hard to execute.

The great batsmen of the past were usually mighty modest chaps when discussing their feats of swat. A majority of the present-day batting stars are equally so.

Without doubt one of the greatest batters in the history of the game is Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Hornsby is the type of batter who makes real base hits. It is an exception for him to get a fluky safety. There is a ring to every ball that he hits.

In making a tour of the training camps one spring, I spent several hours with Hornsby, in which the art of batting formed part of the topic of conversation.

Hornsby at first tried to explain his great batting by saying he was just lucky. I wouldn't accept that one.

"I take batting practice at every opportunity. Try to feel that I am as good a hitter as the pitcher is a pitcher. In other words, have confidence in my ability."

"One feature of batting I am a 'bug' on. I always try to hit the ball in batting practice that it goes through the pitcher's box. This, I believe, makes for perfect timing of the ball."

"That's the big idea. Time the ball perfectly if you would be a great batter."

"That was all he would say about his hitting."

"Lefty" Leifeld, assistant to Leo Tobi at Boston, is a great admirer of Hornsby. Recently he bumped into the St. Louis star. The batting averages just published showed him batting better than .400.

"See you are hitting them better than ever," remarked Leifeld.

"Wrong," replied Hornsby, "the pitching isn't quite so good."

Demetral is going 15 miles of roadwork daily in preparation for his match with Kid Hanson, state light heavyweight champion at Olin Park Friday night at 8:30.

Demetral is working hard to be in the best shape of his career, as he expects a terrific battle with Hanson who will weigh him a good 15 pounds. Jimmy's endurance will decide the contest, for there is no doubt, but what he's the more clever mat artist, but Hanson will attempt to wear him out by the use of his superior weight.

Van Worden, the Canadian middleweight champion writes that he is in the pink for his fifth match with the old fox, in the grappling game, Matty Matsuda. These two should put up a battle that will be epochal in the mat game for Madison. Van Worden made a host of friends in his initial appearance here. He is a clean type of athlete and has more holds at his command than any wrestler seen here in ages.

Tickets are on sale at Fishers and Galvin's cigar stores or may be purchased on the grounds the night of the combat.

Hank Casserly's Column

Today is the opening day of the Wisconsin Grand Circuit at Evansville. This Rock County fair is one of the best agricultural exhibits in the state and their speed program is a fine one for the size of the fair.

C. S. Ware, secretary of the organization and superintendent of speed, knows his stuff and always has an attractive race program. Wiswall of Elkhorn is generally in the starter's stand and is ably assisted by Bill Campbell of Madison.

The program lasts four days, the best races on the card being reserved for Saturday afternoon.

The two races to be run off today are the 2:25 pace and the 2:16 trot.

Many of the horses entered are strangers to harness fans in this part of the woods, those best known being at Peoria this week for the closing week of the Illinois Valley circuit.

Dr. H. J. Nelson of Stoughton, a bay mare entered by the name of Mae Vinita Patcher, which is a stranger to local horsemen, but reports from the Wagon City are to the effect that she has trained well.

Tommy Goodall of Beloit has an entry. The Link, who can win if she wants to, had a fast mile.

Two horses from Eric, Pa., are entered that are well bred, one by Peter the Great and the other by Kentucky Todd and if being bred in the purple works out as usual they should be strong contenders.

Vaughanetta Chimes should rule favorite. She is owned by C. E. Robin, sons of Glenn Ellyn Illinois, and is entered in some of the faster trots and may not start in this class.

The 2:16 trot is not so hard to do up. So far, a bay mare that was campaigned through this circuit in 1923, should be a favorite if she is in any condition at all. She is a part of the J. C. Nichols stable of Shelbygan, and is a pretty trotter.

Dogwood from the same stable is also entered in this race and may prove to be a contender. This gelding performed around here last year as a three year old colt and gave promise of developing into a valuable trotter.

Jonshire, for whom a time allowance is claimed, is another trotter that should be up among them. This bay gelding upset the talent at Monroe in 1923 and may be ripe to repeat.

Binken Azoff may spill the beans for the railbirds. All these Azoffs are fast, well behaved trotters and prove to be serious contenders in every race in which they start.

Every noon from now until Sunday the roads between here and Evansville will be crowded with horsemen from Madison, Monroe, Elkhorn, Stoughton, Jefferson, the opening week's racing on the Wisconsin circuit.

The following week Janesville will have the honor of being host to the judges of good horseflesh, and then comes Monroe and Madison. All these cities are within easy driving distance and anyone interested may eat at home early at noon and return in time for a late dinner in the evening.

"Rudy" Scheibel has discarded his book on cribbage, having finally acknowledged that it is a trifle old and in serious need of revision. This step was taken only after General Gilbert proved to Rudy's satisfaction that the facts as set forth in the original edition were a trifle behind the present day needs. Those interested may feel satisfied that the new work by Madison's leading authority on the board and its uses will be a much more elaborate exposition of the game.

250,000 Will See U.W. Grid Games, Belief

Record Crowds are Expected This Season, Says Hunter

Nearly a quarter of a million persons—probably more—will witness the University of Wisconsin football eleven in action at Camp Randall stadium, Madison, this fall, according to Paul Hunter, director of ticket sales, who is being kept busy these days preparing to send out notices to alumni, regarding the sale of tickets.

Wisconsin has the biggest and most attractive home schedule in the history of the school, and at the three "big" home games with Iowa, Minnesota and Notre Dame, Mr. Hunter predicts complete sell-outs, or in other words 33,000 persons at each game.

The preliminary games this year, according to Mr. Hunter, should prove especially attractive. The first game with North Dakota university (not Aggies as many people think) should draw about 7,500 spectators, according to Mr. Hunter.

The Cos game will draw about 12,000 persons, Hunter thinks. The Ames tilt too will draw between ten and twelve thousand, Hunter says.

Only 10,000 ducats are to be allowed Wisconsin rooters for the Chicago game at the Midway, making a total of 138,500. Although it isn't a "home game," Badger students think of it as such because the Latin quarter is devoted at the Capital city when the Maroons and Badgers clash.

The cost of tickets for the games this year will be the same as last. The prelims will bring $1.50 a person while the Notre Dame and the two Big Ten team games will cost $2.50. At Chicago, the price will be $3.00. This price is set by the Chicago athletic department, not by Wisconsin authorities.

WILSON K. O'S MALONE
BOSTON—Johnny Wilson, New York former middleweight champion, knocked out Jack Malone, St. Paul, in the sixth round.

PARIS — COOK WINS
heavyweight, defeated Euzelin Paolino of Spain in 15 rounds.

The program commences at 10:30 a. m. when Edgerton meets Lake Mills, leaders in the Inter-County league. Lake Mills will have Strassberg, formerly of the Cambridge team, on the mound, while Mahon and Whitford will be the batters for Edgerton.

Two of the candidates for the governorship will speak to the crowd. John J. Blaine, present statehouse executive, will give a talk at 1 p. m. while A. R. Hirst, candidate for the highest office in Wisconsin, will speak at 4:30 p. m.

At 2:30 p. m. the Twin City Red Sox will meet Gilekerson's Union Giants in the feature entertainment of the day. These two teams play for a $450.00 purse, the winner to get 60% and the loser 40%.

Besides the major attractions, there will be kitchball games, barnyard golf and a huge midway with all sorts of entertainment. Open air dancing will be a feature of the day with the music furnished by the Bluebirds.

The evening will be featured by a wonderful display of fireworks, which are costing the Legion post a small fortune.

Don't forget the date, Wednesday, July 30, today.

Kleinheinz Is Taking Slight Batting Drop

But Blues' Slugger Is Still Leading Heap With .416

Batting averages for the Madison Blues in games up to date show that Franz Kleinheinz, who has been ahead of the rest of the locals in slugging most of the year, continued to drop a little, getting only one single in eight trips to the plate, but he is still on top with a mark of .416.

Three players boosted their averages. "Rowdy" Elliott climbed back into the select circle by hitting safely three times in seven attempts and went up to .304. McErney went up five points, from .341 to .346, taking second place from Ruediger, and Johnny Mohardt leaped from .275 to .287.

The figures follow:

	G	AB	BH	Pct
Kleinheinz	36	137	57	.416
McErney	28	107	37	.346
Ruediger	35	134	46	.345
Elliott	35	125	38	.304
Lenahan	35	147	43	.292
Mohardt	35	122	35	.287
La Hall	16	52	14	.279
Stumpf	36	131	30	.228
Gill	36	147	32	.217
Dodge	16	50	10	.200
Bowman	10	29	5	.172

The record books show that all the Blues together have been at the plate 1,181 times and have connected for 347 base blows giving them their .294 average. Failure to hit much in the two-game series with the American Giants last week played havoc with the club's slugging mark.

Platteville Split Even In Twin Bill, 7-0, 1-0

PLATTEVILLE, Wis.—The Johnson Jewetts engaged Livingstons and Dodgeville baseball clubs on the fair grounds, winning from Livingston in the opener, 7 to 0. All Platteville runs came in the first inning on five hits, a base on balls, a wild per and a batter hit by a pitched ball.

Mason, for Dodgeville in the second, moved down the locals in a seven inning game, getting eleven strikeouts and holding the locals to two hits. Weidner, for the locals, got eight strikeouts and held Dodgeville to two hits. A base on balls, a stolen base and a wild pitch gave Dodgeville the only run of the game.

Growing Together

What does the future hold for East Madison? What does the future hold for YOU? Two questions with one answer. For if East Madison grows and you help it to grow, you will be building for your own future at the same time.

East Madison has grown amazingly in the past five years. New homes, schools and churches, new factories and business enterprises all testify to the remarkable progress of this "city within a city."

The directors of the Security State Bank believe, however, that all this is but a beginning. The beautiful new building, which this bank now occupies, with its facilities and equipment for serving a community of twice this size is a monument to our faith in a far greater tomorrow for East Madison. And now we want to work with you, and we want you to work with us to turn these visions into reality.

The interests of the Security State Bank are entirely in East Madison; our loans are confined to East Madison and the farming community tributary thereto; all our energies and all our resources are being devoted to the advancement and welfare of this community.

These resources which are being used so freely for local development come from you and from the other depositors of this institution. This bank is the great reservoir into which your deposits are poured to be fed out again as loans which become a hundred streams of power to turn the wheels of local industry and enterprise. East Madison, The Security State Bank and YOU must grow together. Let us, therefore, work together for one end—for a bigger and better community and greater success and prosperity for ourselves.

If you believe in East Madison and want to see it grow—do all your banking with the Security State Bank in East Madison.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BEDTIME STORIES

By HOWARD GARIS
(Copyright, 1924 by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY RAKES THE LAWN

"Good morning, Uncle Wiggily!" called Mrs. Moo. The lady cow, as she stood looking over the fence of the rabbit gentleman's hollow stump on a low day. "Don't you want your grass cut?" she asked, switching her tail from side to side. "It's growing very long."

"Why, yes, thank you, Mrs. Moo; I think perhaps it might be a good idea for you to cut my lawn," repeated Mr. Longears sort of slow and careful like, as a Scotchman might be in pouring out molasses.

So the lady cow jumped the fence, which was easy for her to do, since she had jumped over the moon, and the dish ran away with the spoon.

Wrapping her tongue about bunches of grass, Mrs. Moo pulled them out of Uncle Wiggily's lawn. She knew cow has no teeth in her mouth, though she has some between her teeth, and when she bit off the grass she must wind her tongue out at it and pull.

"It is a very good thing to have a cow cut your grass," said Mrs. Moo. Jane Fozzy Wuzzly to Uncle Wiggily, as they watched Mrs. Moo on the lawn. "It makes the lawn look better, and Mrs. Moo can eat the grass and burn it into manure. Which couldn't be done if the grass were cut with a lawn mowing machine."

"That is very true," said Uncle Wiggily. "And when Mrs. Moo finishes cutting the grass I will be ready to make it look smooth."

Pretty soon Mrs. Moo had pulled off enough grass from the rabbit gentleman's lawn, having eaten much as she wished.

"I will bid you good-day, Uncle Wiggily," she said, as once more she jumped over the fence. "I'll come another time when your grass needs cutting."

"Thank you," spoke the rabbit gentleman, with a pinkle of his twink nose, which is just the same as a twinkle of a pink nose, or backward. "Now I will get the rabbit smooth the lawn," he added, if Mrs. Moo had dropped bits of grass here and there.

While Uncle Wiggily was raking the loose grass off his lawn, all of a sudden, along came the Woof-Woof.

"I want to nibble your ears," howled the Wolf.

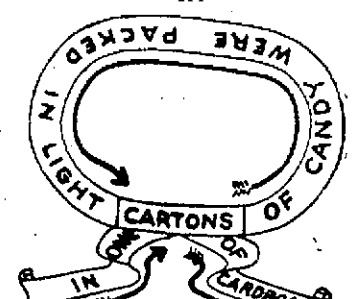

"Oh, do you? Very well," replied Uncle Wiggily, calm and confident like. "I'll sit down on the lawn until I finish raking it. Then we shall talk about nibbling ears."

"Hunt!" mused the Wolf, "you don't seem very frightened of me. I must say," and he sat down on the grass with his fluffy tail sticking out straight behind him.

Daily Puzzle

IN DECEMBER MUD AND SLUSH ARE FREQUENT

The sentence given above contains the name of a well known island. The name is there in full view with all its letters in regular order; but they are contained in more than one word of the sentence. Can you discover the hidden island? Yesterday's answer:

The missing word for the bow is "CARTONS." The first time it must be read as two words, "CAR TONS;" the second time as a single word.

NEW FLOUNCES

Flounces, circular in shape on one or both sides of the coat are new features seen on the fall coats.

BELTLESS FROCK
The beltless frock is quite apt to have circular ruffles about the hem, and very plain, long sleeves.

"Since then," I continued, "through a series of peculiar incidents, you know what has happened. Now it's up to you to play the game just as I played it when you came to me with a confession that was not so innocent."

"You must excuse me now, for I must see that everything is made ready for the proper celebration of our happy married state."

As I left the room I heard Sydney Carton's voice in the hallway calling:

"Hey, Jack, where are you? I went over to the office and that most delectable secretary of yours told me you had gone home. Is Leslie ill? Certainly nothing else but illness in the family could have kept you from meeting me at the train. I told you I was coming in this morning. I'll just have to change my mind."

I had made my way into the room that we are using for little Jack's nursery. It opens off of Jack's room as well as mine. It never entered my mind, little Mrs. Quince, that Jack would not go into the living room to meet Sydney. To my consternation, however, he said:

"Come in here, Syd. Everybody's all right. I confess I forgot that you were coming in today."

Then he raised his voice a little and shouted:

"Sydney's here, Leslie."

I did not answer. Instead, I locked the doors of communication between both Jack's and my rooms and the nursery.

In a moment or two I heard Jack call Nora and tell her to tell me that Mr. Carton was here. Shortly after Nora informed him she thought I had gone out, that Mother Prescott had told her she had caught a view of me getting into the elevator.

Just who Mother Prescott had taken for me, I did not know, but I determined to make her word good, and leave the house as soon as I could without being seen. I wanted to talk over matters with Ruth.

Before I could do this, however, I heard Jack mention my name to Syd, and then in a torrent of words he told him the whole story.

Evidently Sydney Carton did not say a word until Jack had finished then I heard in the most contemptuously sarcastic tones, these words:

"Jack, I have always known you were a fool, but it never occurred to me that you were such an utter damn fool as you have proved yourself to me by the conversation that has just taken place."

"But, Syd, can you not see that Leslie has put me in a terrible position? If this matter should get out I would never be able to hold up my head again."

"And yet you threatened her, Jack."

"Oh, I didn't mean it, neither does she mean what she said to me."

"Rather think so does," said Syd.

I was able to get out of the room then and heard no more.

TOMORROW: Telephone from Beatrice Grimshaw to Leslie Prescott.

Is Youngest Congress Member at 29

—BY ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE

At the time of my election I had never been farther east than Chicago, and when I arrived in Washington I found myself the youngest member of Congress. I was 29 years old.

Having thus been elected to Congress in November, 1884, I began to realize keenly how ill-prepared I was to meet with intelligence any important national question. My service as district attorney during the preceding four years had absorbed my energies to the exclusion of everything else.

For these reasons I resolved to go to Washington in January, 1885. The Forty-ninth Congress, to which I had been elected, did not meet until December, but I hoped that by attending the closing session of the Forty-eighth Congress I might learn something of the great national questions then under consideration.

I attended the sessions of the House as faithfully as though I were a member. I studied the rules, followed every debate, read the Congressional Record each day. When there was an all-night session I remained all night.

It was then that speaker: he was a striking figure. A near view of his face was disappointing: it was almost colorless and his eyes as dull as lead, but, seen from a distance, his great, strong head was indeed striking.

Many other notable figures were then playing their parts upon the national stage. Arthur was in the White House, and Blaine was still a great party leader. In the Senate, where I sometimes occupied a seat in the gallery, were Edmunds, Hoar, Sherman, Evans, Allison and Ingalls.

In the House, the leaders were Tom Reed, McKinley, the brilliant Ben Butterworth and Joe Cannon. Cannon had not then earned the title of "Uncle Sam's favorite"; he was a rough and rugged man of 50 years, a hardy off-hand debater.

On the Democratic side were Carlisle, Randall, Mills and Holman of Indiana. Holman was always objecting—the watch-dog of the treasury.

During the daytime I heard these men discussing the important issues of the time; many of the nights I spent in the Congressional Library, eagerly reading political history, wanted to get hold of fundamental principles and the reasons underlying current issues. I also read many speeches—Lincoln and Douglas, and the Elliot debates.

remained in Washington until after the inauguration of Cleveland. I saw Cleveland and Arthur sitting side by side in the Senate chamber on March 4. My first impression of Cleveland was extremely unfavorable. The contrast with Arthur, who was a fine, handsome figure, was very striking.

Cleveland's homely face, his heavy, inert body, his great shapeless hands, confirmed in my mind the attacks made upon him during the campaign.

Later I came to entertain a great respect for Cleveland, to admire his courage and conscientiousness of his character.

A new congressman finds himself at once irresistibly drawn into various groups and arguments. No sooner was I on the ground than I began to feel the influence of Senator Philletus Sawyer, then the leader of the Republican party in Wisconsin.

owing to the fact that I had been elected to Congress without the assistance of the organization—indeed, in defiance of it—I knew next to nothing about the underlying forces which at that time controlled, and in large measure still control, party machinery.

A very small coterie of men then dominated the politics of Wisconsin and the two great leaders were Senator Sawyer and Henry C. Payne, who afterward became a member of Roosevelt's cabinet.

Sawyer was a man of striking individuality and of much native force. He was a typical lumberman, equipped with great physical strength, and a shrewd, active mind. He had tramped the forests, cruised timber, slept in the snow, built saw-mills and by his own efforts had made several million dollars.

No unlearned was he that it was jokingly said that he signed his name "P. Sawyer" because he could not spell Philletus. He was nevertheless a man of ability, and a shrewd counsel in the prevailing political methods.

He believed in getting all he could for himself and his associates whenever and wherever possible. I always thought that Sawyer's methods did not violate his conscience; he regarded money as properly the chief influence in politics.

Whenever it was necessary, I believe that he bought men as he bought saw-logs. He assumed that every man in politics was serving, first of all, his own personal interests—else why should he be in politics?

He believed quite simply that railroad corporations and lumber companies and beneficiaries of the country, should be given unlimited grants of public lands, allowed to charge all the traffic could bear, and that anything that interfered with the profits of business was akin to treason.

I remember he talked to me in a kindly, fatherly manner—very matter-of-fact—looking at me from time to time with a shrewd smile in his eye. He had no humor, no much of what has been called "horse sense." His talk was jerky and illiterate; he never made a speech in his life.

We called on President Cleveland and on all cabinet officers. His form of introduction was exactly the same at each place we stopped. He was not quite sure, always, of my name; "Follette" he called me. He would say:

"This young man we think a great deal of; we think he is going to amount to something. I want you to be fair to him. I'd like him to get all that is coming to him in his district. I hope you will treat him right when he has any business in your department."

As we drove away from our last call, Sawyer asked me if I had in mind any particular committee in the House upon which I desired to serve.

I told him I had thought it over and I wanted to go on some committee where I could make use of my legal knowledge.

I could not hope to be assigned to the great Committee on Judiciary, so I told him that I should like to go on the Committee on Public Lands. I innocently explained that many land grant forfeitures were pending and I should enjoy grappling with the legal questions which they presented. Sawyer looked at me and said:

"Just leave that to me; don't say another word about it to anybody. I know Carlisle; served with him in the House. Just let me take care of that for you."

I was very grateful and confided in his promises. But when Carlisle announced the committees was assigned to find that Stephens—later a senator from Wisconsin—was appointed to the Committee on Public Lands and that I had been assigned to a place on the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Sawyer came to me promptly and told me that he could not secure my appointment to public lands, but he was sure I would enjoy my work on Indian affairs. There was a reason for putting me on this committee, and not upon public lands, which I did not appreciate until later.

I had been quite too frank in expressing an interest in land-grant forfeitures. But it did not occur to the senator that I might develop "foolish sentimental" ideas against robbing Indian reservations of the pine timber in which they were very rich.

I was disappointed, but so eager to get to work at something definite that I went out immediately and invested quite a little money in second-hand books on Indian history. I also had all the treaties and documents relating to Indians sent to my rooms. It made quite a library. I studied these books diligently, nor was it long before I began to feel a good deal of sympathy with the Indians.

At the Theaters

AT THE PARKWAY

For the final times today Baby Peggy and an all star cast of players will be seen in "The Law Forbids" a powerful drama dealing with the divorce evil which has made a blot on the Parkway.

"Marriage Morals" at the Parkway Theater tomorrow has not with such unusual success since its recent release that the producers, have determined to adapt it for the stage and produce it as a play, after it has its course on the screen. The theme, is rebellion against a false code of "Marriage Morals."

AT THE ORPHEUM

Did any one wake up last evening about ten thirty and hear a roar of laughter that shook every home in Madison almost? It was the large crowd at the Orpheum having one of the thousand laughs that every one gets who attends the performance of "The Law Forbids."

"The Law Forbids" is a comedy rather late and has imbibed a bit too freely and having lived in the apartment house only a short time he proceeds to go into the apartment under his and go to bed. The next morning things start to happen. Don't miss it. Next week "The Bat."

AT THE MADISON

A special double feature all-comedy program consisting of Ben Alexander and Lloyd Hamilton, supported by an all star cast and a score of bathing beauties, in "A Self-Made Failure," and Baby Peggy in her latest comedy "The Flowing Girl" will be shown at the Madison last times today.

Aesop's Fables, latest news, weekly and movies of the U. S. Olympic stars in action, will also be shown. Betty Blythe, Lowell Sherman and Elliott Dexter in "The Spitfire," a daring story of society and stage life will be featured for three days starting Thursday. H. C. Witwer's Telephone Girls "William Tells" will also be shown. Coming Sunday Douglas MacLean in "Never Say Die."

AT THE MAJESTIC

No more thrilling exciting and dramatic picture has been offered here this season than Reginald Barker's "Women Who Give" now showing at the Majestic. It is based on Sarah Greene's classic of men who go down to the sea in ships, "Cape Cod Folks," and boasts a truly all-star cast including Barbara Bedford, Frank Keenan, Robert Frazer, Renee Adoree and Joseph Dowling. "Women Who Give" will remain until the end of the week.

AT THE MAJESTIC Sir Oliver Lodge and Conan Doyle would like the part of "Sinner or Saint" Betty Blythe's new picture, but it is doubtful if they would like the latter part of it.

Why? For the reason that one of the scenes is the unmaking of a medium who pretends to be conversing with the dead!

"Sinner or Saint" will be shown for the first times at the Majestic Theatre today and tomorrow. "The Forbidden Lore" is the feature attraction for Friday and Saturday.

Mazomanie Elopers are Halted In Dubuque, Ia.

A Mazomanie couple, Marion Lindley, 17, and Alvin Jenkins, 19, were detained in Dubuque, Iowa, when they attempted to obtain a marriage license. They were halted upon the request of the girl's parents.

Why? For the reason that one of the scenes is the unmaking of a medium who pretends to be conversing with the dead!

"Sinner or Saint" will be shown for the first times at the Majestic Theatre today and tomorrow. "The Forbidden Lore" is the feature attraction for Friday and Saturday.

Of Arabic origin, the name "alfalfa" means "part fodder."

Household Hints

ROLL, DON'T FOLD Large dollies and table covers should always be rolled, not folded.

PINEAPPLE EYES There is an inexpensive device on the market for taking the eyes out of pineapples which makes the preparation of this delicious fruit much simpler.

GOOD FIRST COURSE Melons make a delicious first course for hot weather that is much preferred to soup. Watermelons or cantaloupe cocktails are made by cutting the melons into cubes and pouring over a dressing made of a tablespoon of lemon or lime juice, a tablespoon of powdered sugar and one teaspoon of finely chopped mint.

BRIGHTENS SILVER Silver is brighter if wiped directly from clean, hot slightly soapy water.

SAPPHIRE BLUE Sapphire blue embroidery and facings of velvet in the same color make distinctive trimming for a black satin gown.

HOME FURNISHING Rooms

Rooms may be made to look higher by the use of vertically patterned wallpaper. Up-and-down lines, three inches or so apart, with no other pattern in it, or at the most a small unassuming pattern, are used effectively to give an idea of height.

A Little Tip Mr. Motorist

Does your car overheat because of improper radiator circulation? If so, you can easily clean it yourself and save time and money by using a mixture of live steam and sodium phosphate. Pour it in the radiator while the motor is running, and leave the solution in for two days.

An Appeal to Progressives

Newspapers Are Again Starting Their Campaign of Misrepresentation and Distortion; Truth Should Be Gotten to the People; Here Is a Way to Bring This About

IN AN editorial in his magazine in November, 1920, Robert M. La Follette made the following statement concerning the American press:

The American public will think straight if given a fair chance. The great heart of the mass of mankind is right. It always beats in sympathy with human welfare.

But sound judgment may only be based upon a sound basis of truth. When truth is distorted, when lies pass current for facts when white is made to look black, and black white by a press that poisons its readers day by day, then the public is dragged into apathy or befuddled into a wholly false opinion.

The people know the press is owned or controlled. They know that it is the servant of the combined groups which control Big Business, and through Big Business is rapidly acquiring the control of little business—line after line.

But foreknowledge that the press habitually misrepresents the facts, that it suppresses news, that it is unreliable on all issues involving public interest as against private monopoly,—foreknowledge of all these facts cannot protect the public against its sinister influence.

FROM TIME to time there have been printed in the Voice of the People department of The Capital Times letters from its readers who have expressed this view:

"We wish that The Capital Times could be placed in the hands of every voter in the state of Wisconsin."

These expressions from the readers of this newspaper have been received because of the fact that there is continually printed in The Capital Times information and facts that are ignored and suppressed and distorted by other papers.

The people of Wisconsin long ago found that the newspapers of this state were uniformly lined up on the side of big business. They have not forgotten the bitter campaigns that have been conducted by the newspapers of the north-west to destroy Senator La Follette. This country is ruled to-day by the two per cent who controls 70 per cent of the wealth, the two per cent controls the credit and the millions in advertising. Through these mediums they control the newspapers.

Whenever the newspapers of America are asked to choose between the public welfare on the one hand and the interests of the two per cent on the other 90 times out of 100 they align themselves on the side of the hand that feeds them.

NEVER HAS there been a time when it is so essential to get the truth to the people as at present. Wisconsin today has its most illustrious son as a presidential candidate. Wisconsin must make a showing in this election that will bring inspiration to the millions of progressives throughout the country who are hoping that the La Follette vote in November will be so impressive as to demand the formation of a permanent third party.

In order to get the issues of this campaign before the people, The Capital Times will make a special three months offer for the three months between now and election. In order to get The Capital Times before the people of Wisconsin this newspaper will be mailed anywhere in Wisconsin from now until Nov. 5th for $1.

DO YOU know of any person in your community who can be enlisted in the progressive cause if he is given the proper information and facts? Is there some friend of YOURS who has been fed up on the lies and misinformation of the kept press? Why not send him The Capital Times for the next three months.

Does your local newspaper give you any information about what your member of the legislature and your member of Congress are doing? Does your local paper ever print any roll calls? The roll calls printed in The Capital Times have made this newspaper known from one end of Wisconsin to the other.

The present is particularly a good time to send The Capital Times to a friend. Senator La Follette's "My Own Story" is now appearing in this newspaper and will be continued until the latter part of October. It is a thrilling narrative of Senator La Follette's dramatic career. It is the story of Senator La Follette's life told in the senator's tremendously interesting style.

THE NEWSPAPERS of the country have already begun to misrepresent and misinform regarding the campaign of Senator La Follette for the presidency. This misrepresentation will increase as the campaign progresses. Every opportunity will be used to put obstacles in the way of La Follette's candidacy.

Let's get the truth to the people. Fill out the coupon below and let's see that the people of Wisconsin are given the truth.

IT is going to be an individual campaign more than a party campaign—a battle of personalities.

—Senator W. E. Borah.

THE government needs help; the people need help. Only God is equal to the occasion, and I wish He would hurry.

—E. W. Howe.

HATRED is a block to progress.

—Rev. Dilworth Lupton, Cleveland.

Voice of the People

THE CORRECTIONS ARE NOTED

(To The Editor)—In looking over the roll calls in The Capital Times for July 26, I find a few errors which I would like to have corrected.

The Eber bill, 606-A I find, you have both C. E. Hanson and myself down as voting against the bill. If you will look on page 1287 of the journal of May 22 you will find that we both voted against Assemblyman Peterson's motion to indefinitely postpone and the motion was lost by a vote of 47 to 39. On page 1454 in the journal of June 7 you will find that I voted NO on Summerville's motion to indefinitely postpone 606-A, but just above, on the same page, I voted YES on a motion of the "previous question." There is probably where the compiler made the mistake.

Also on Bill No. 132 S. "for the removal of appointive state officers, by the legislature," you will find on page 1003 of the journal of April 26 that I voted against the motion for non-concurrence, which was lost by vote of 67 to 18.—J. C. Hanson, Deerfield, Wis.

A FRIEND OF THE KLAN

(To The Editor)—F. L. Gleiter of Alma, Wis., writes an article in your paper in which he is boosting for "Fighting Bob." That part is all good, but he spoils his whole letter by calling the K. K. K. a menace. I don't see how he can be a La Follette man and call the K. K. K. a menace when this organization stands for the very things that Bob stands for. If being an American, asking for just and enforced laws, doing away with crooked politicians and dirty capitalists is a menace, then what would Mr. Gleiter like to see? I wonder if he realizes that if Bob is against the K. K. K. that it means his defeat? If Bob will stay on the dry end of the plank and uphold the K. K. K. he is sure to be our next president. If not, then he must be left out. I would be very glad if Mr. Gleiter would explain to us readers why he considers the K. K. K. a menace. If he does he will be the first man that ever could explain it.—A Reader, Chippewa Falls.

PASSING THE BUCK

(To The Editor)—Our representatives in congress were severely spanked for not "obeying orders." Now its the farmers of Wisconsin that are being punished for sending such men to congress. This is a dairy state and dairy products are not sufficiently protected by a tariff. Canada is shipping in her cheese and Europe is flooding our market with condensed milk and butter. The tariff board have taken this matter up, but as three members of the board keep a cow they were disqualified from acting on a measure in which they were "financially interested."

The matter was then referred to President Coolidge and he in turn "passed the buck" to the attorney general. Our milk will be a long time sour before we get any relief. The Republicans in Washington love us like a rattle snake. As Brisbane predicted they have raised the price of corn and wheat temporarily in order to jolly the western farmer. But we are not worth jollying because as far as they are concerned this state is hopeless.—O. B. James, Richland Center, Wis.

IS MADISON PATRIOTIC?

(To The Editor)—I am proud of my country and my flag, and I dearly love it. But do a majority of our Madisonians love it? Sunday evening just before the fireworks in Brighthouse park the Italian band played The Star Spangled Banner. Of all the men and women who were Americans, only one-third of them that were sitting stood, and those of the men were standing didn't even as much as take off their hats. I think if our Madison people love their flag they would show their respect in some way, whether it is the Italian feast or the Americans, when the band plays The Star Spangled Banner.—A Madisonian.

FROM MR. GLEITER

(To The Editor)—That little story of the Buffalo county farmer who supports honest Bob La Follette was not written by F. L. Gleiter, but by Paul F. L. Gleiter. F. L. Gleiter is my uncle and also a staunch supporter of Bob. The Capital Times is the fairest and squarest paper published in Wisconsin because it presents the pros and cons of all issues.—Paul F. L. Gleiter, Alma, Wis.

IN PRESIDENTIAL CHAIR

(To The Editor)—In May issue of The Pathfinder is the following:
"La Follette headquarters for presidential campaign have been opened in Madison, Wis. Where the headquarters are to be located is not stated."

I beg leave to say that on and after March 4, 1925, both head and hind quarters will be located in the presidential chair, Washington, D. C.—D. W., Montford, Wis.

LIKES THE EDITORIAL

(To The Editor)—Please mail to my address immediately four copies of The Capital Times published Wednesday, July 23, containing Mr. Evans' editorial, "Lad of 1873; Leader in 1924." I want to make special use of this. It is excellent.—E. C. Davies, Dodgeville, Wis.

LAWING

It'd be a good thing if two-thirds of our laws were repealed, a speaker cleans at convention of Retail Credit Men's National association. Instead, thousands of new laws are being added each year. If they were all enforced nearly everyone would be in jail.

Law-making is a national obsession. As soon as a problem rises, public thinks they can dismiss it by rushing through a new law. Usually failure.

INSURANCE

More life insurance policies being taken out by Americans than ever before. Total has been at a rate of about eight and a half billion dollars a year. It's a third more than in 1922.

The public is living less for the present and thinking more for the future—incidentally taking fewer chances, playing safe. Such is the psychological undercurrent, and it will gradually assert itself in politics and business.

Coming Primaries

Eight Will Be Held During Early Part of August; Owen Not in the Race.

(From Labor)

Between August 1st and August 12th, primaries will be held in eight states for the nomination of senators, congressmen and local officers. In many of these states a nomination on one of the old party tickets is equivalent to an election. The contest in November is a mere formality.

The following are the eight primaries which will be held during the first half of August:

Kentucky August 2
Kansas August 5
Missouri August 5
Oklahoma August 5
Virginia August 5
Tennessee August 7
Arkansas August 12
Ohio August 12

Kentucky, Kansas, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Arkansas will nominate United States senators. Senator A. Owsley Stanley, Democrat of Kentucky, should be renominated and reelected.

Senator Arthur Capper is a candidate for renomination on the Republican ticket in Kansas. His record is far from satisfactory, but his opponents in the primary are apparently even more reactionary. Capper should be nominated in the primary, but voters should reserve judgment as to how they will vote in November. Perhaps they will have an opportunity to support a real Progressive.

Senator Robert L. Owen has decided not to be a candidate to succeed himself in Oklahoma. A number of candidates are struggling for the Democratic nomination.

Senator John K. Shields, one of the most reactionary of Democratic senators, is a candidate to succeed himself in Tennessee, while Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic floor leader in the senate, is opposed for the Democratic nomination in Arkansas.

The Two Planks

By ROBERT F. PAINE

WHILE it is not a long or ambiguous platform, the La Follette platform might be condensed to just two simple planks:

1: Kick out the Invisible Government.
2: Put it out of the power of Invisible Government's Supreme Court to defeat the kicking out of Invisible Government.

All other planks are well enough as plans and specifications. To put it in another way, they serve to locate the axes and prescribe certain politeness and liniments. But the disorder is fundamental. It is in the heart, that great pump which sends the blood to all parts of the whole, and without the right working of which disaster is certain.

There is no longer doubt as to where control of government lies. No unbiased American of intelligence, regardless of his or her party creed, is so dumb as to fail to realize that our government control lies in the hands of the monopolies and a privileged class.

And every demand for reform and progress, even when enacted by a congress loyal to public desires and needs, is at the mercy of five supreme court judges hand-picked, or naturally bred and reared in the interests of monopoly and privilege. There lies the fate of all party planks. There lies government in the final analysis.

In the hands of Invisible Government's judicial oligarchy lies the future of our republic and the power it has usurped is unlimited. The "Thou Shalt Not" of the Almighty is a commandment, and you can disobey it. The word of our oligarchy is a decision, and you cannot evade it. You may say yes to any plank in any platform—and know that there sits up aloft a little bunch of property-worshipping lawyers to invalidate your laws, to the protection or further advantage of organized capital and predatory privilege.

You need not be confused by the many details, explanatory declarations, long sentences, or number of plans of La Follette's or any other platform. But keep your mind upon the two planks roughly presented above, consider what nominee will push, pull and pound away for them, if elected, and you will be able to vote clean, true and effectively.

CROWDED

Japan is encouraging emigration of her people to Brazil. It's reported she'll pay their traveling expenses and give them a present of 200 yen apiece when they depart.

Paying citizens to leave a country is something new. The orient is over-populated. It's an ancient situation, not new. And it's aggravated by the world-wide rise in standard of living, which has a tendency to make an acre of land support fewer people.

Improved industrial and agricultural methods and devices will never be able to keep pace with the craving for still better living standards.

GOLD

This is news to most people: Gold is sometimes prescribed by physicians as medicine. It's taken in certain kinds of despondency where the patient is on the borderline of suicidal tendencies.

A few doses of "arum metallicum" (gold) properly administered by a doctor, often make the melancholy person cheerful and full of positive optimism.

The coveted yellow metal has similar powers, received externally. Its possession or loss sways human emotions as much as friendship and love.

The word tobacco is derived from "tobaco," the tube or pipe through which tobacco was smoked by the natives of Central and South America.

A farmer at Lichtenburg, South Africa, recently found a crow that had choked to death on a 7 1/2-carat diamond.
